A Style Of Our Own

A Style Of Our Own

Carol Resh and Mindy Twist get into the Christmas spirit.

No matter where you look at Northern High School, there is always a struggle for individuality. However, it is not just an individual struggle. It is a struggle for the whole school's style of their own. Accents, attitudes, clothing, and walk are all individual and unique characteristics.

Since the founding of Garrett County in 1872, a distinct reputation has prevailed. "No style," "behind in fashion," or "out of date" are some people's view of Garrett County. This doesn't seem to bother Northern students though. According to them, fashion and style are for each person and we all have our own style. "It's not important how others feel about our school. It is how the students themselves think and feel. Everyone in our school plays a special part, so we must remember that, not the criticism," said one student.. Each student is entitled to their own style and should not be ridiculed for it. What you wear often makes a statement about you.

Often times Garrett County has been labeled "boring", but Northern students disagree. The rural and quiet atmosphere allows the students to enhance their education. A willingness to learn and a continual effort are characteristics Northern students pursue. This allows them to be successful in many aspects. Northern ranks at the top with test scores.

In all areas and aspects, Northern strives for a distinct and individual style.

A Style Of Life

Stepping Out With Style

Whatever suits your feet!

Fashions change so quickly that if you don't pay attention, you could be wearing a thing of the past. It is almost a race to see who can get ahead on the fashion scale. Is it how wild, outlandish, or outrageous the outfit is? Who starts the fad or is it the first to move on to another one? A few fashion changes of the year were baggy clothes, acid wash jeans, long jean skirts, and Reeboks. Jeans were then rolled up two or three times. Girls let their hair grow longer so they could put it up in a mane or took on the "fly away look." With a little mousse and time to tease, you can do anything with your hair. Keep a good look out for the slightest change in style and you'll be at the top of the fashion scale.

All David Miller needs now is his surfboard and he's ready to go.

Couldn't You Use A Friend?

Excitement is added to Algebra II when Darren Wilburn, Gloria Broadwater, Julie Swauger, and Debbie Baker are present.

Student body shows their togetherness during the magazine campaign.

Threesome Kendra Frazee, Kim Green, and Karen Wilhelm stay after school to dedicate their time to silks.

Rachel Frantz and Jenny Lytle are best friends and plan to stay that way.

Algebra buddies, Petrina Jones and Lisa Miller, always find time to help each other with their homework.

During school what would it be like to walk down the halls alone simply gazing at people you don't know?

A friend is always there to lend a hand and listen to your problems and help out every way they can. You can always count on them. Think of all the crazy moments you can look back on, but there are also bad times. Someone once said it isn't a good friendship unless there has been some bad times. Remember with a friend you always have someone to lean on. What would you do without a friend?

Style Shows Through During Spirit Week

Debbie Rounds gazes at Kim Frantz's battle scars.

Mike Menges and Mr. Brenneman are stylishly dressed for the Hawaiian Day festivities.

The opening day of Spirit Week, "Stomp'em Petersburg Vikings Day" sent students stomping through the halls. "Clash Day" started Tuesday with a wild and crazy blurr of colors. Students wore anything and everything that did not match. Blackout Petersburg Day was recognized by students dressed like they traveled through a war zone. Thursday many people dressed in their jams, Hawaiian shirts, and lais for "Go Hawaiian Day." This was the best turnout for Spirit Week. Friday was the annual "Blue and Gold Day." Almost everyone in the school participated in this to show their school spirit.

Trena Folk and Leilani Noble pose before doing the hula.

Connie McKenzie, Carrie Stark, and Christine McKenzie show their spirit by stomping the Vikings.

Bonfire Lights Up The Night

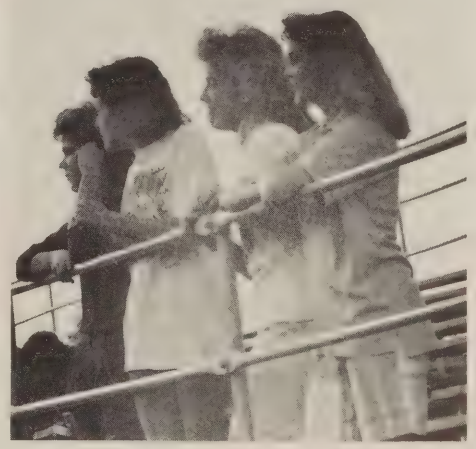
The band waits patiently to perform.

Ed Lytle happily steps forward as the prestigious Bonfire King.

Jason Rush, Celina McElroy, and Steve Morton become seriously involved in the game while Brian Friend, Aaron Morris, and William Nedrow socialize.

Bonfire '87 was packed with excitement. Some of the girls entertained the students by playing Powder Puff football. The band performed their field show while the cheerleaders followed up by doing a dance to "Wipe-Out." They also did cheers to pep up the crowd. The Bonfire King, Eddie Lytle, was announced and awarded the crown. Everyone then gathered around the fire to condlude the evening by dancing to "Wipe-Out."

Mona Mosser laughs at the competition while Lohri Sisler and Carrie House reveiw their plays in their heads.



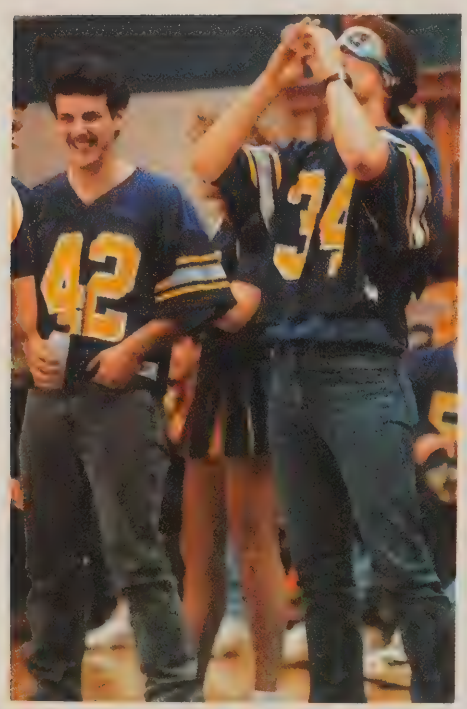
Kim Warnick, Cindy Stanton, Connie Miller, and Jennifer Birkby are entertained by the powder puff football.

Crazy With Spirit

The Pep Rally for the football team was held Friday, November 6, 1987. The student body, excited and rowdy, cheered the football team to attack the Southern Rams with Huskie pride.

The introduction of the football players put the activity in motion. Some groups that participated in the event were the Varsity and J.V. cheerleaders, the band and auxillary, the volleyball team, and the student council which showed their appreciation by doing little dances and singing off key. Which class yelled the loudest? Four different answers were received for this question. The official Ram dummy concluded the event as it was executed by the football team and ripped to shreds.

The Girls' Varsity helps cheer on their friends after they entertained by singing the Victory song.



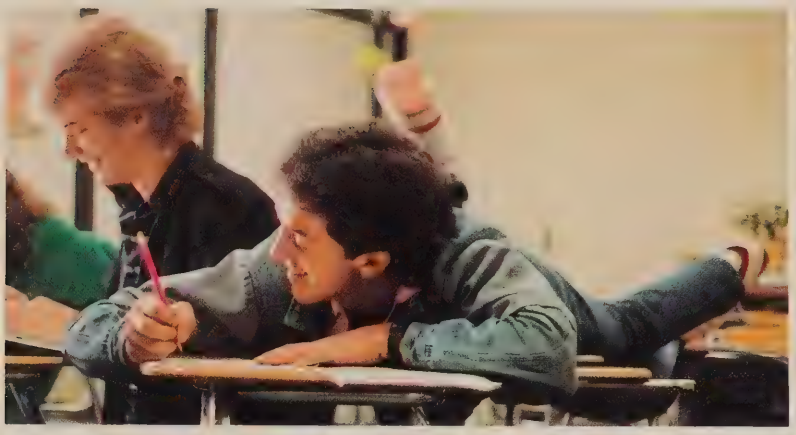
Jeff Rounds, blindfolded, chugs his daily bottle of water while unknown the other varsity players watch him. He then received kisses, Hershey chocolate, afterwards from each of the cheerleaders.

The official Ram dummy hangs before being ripped apart by the huskies.

During the Pep Rally the Varsity cheerleaders display their coordination by doing a mount.

The Easy Life

Larry Carr always takes it easy.



David Lewis leads the pack as they come from lunch.

It's always an honor being on the football team.

Kirby King jams with his guitar to some original sounds of '88.

The newly restored windows were officially initiated during Spirit Week.

Paul Lichty ponders on the thought of doing homework.

Do You Have The Munchies?

MMM . . . Don't you wish you could have some right about now?

Are you hungry as a bear? Some may say junkfood is an essential when eating. If you think about it, that may be all you eat. How about some spinach, turnips, beets, brocolli, cauliflower, eggplant, carrots, peas, lima beans or celery? The majority of people would probably went to replace those healthy foods with the junkfood that we draw to every day, such as: Doritos, potato chips, Pepsi or Coke, chocolate cakes, pizza, slushies, chips, and Little Debbie cakes—they all help us enjoy our lunch and snack time. We eat junkfood at school, the mall, movies, and at home. We all eat it because it not only tastes good, but it's quick and easy. What would we do without junkfood? We would probably starve! Although junkfood is not as healthy as brocolli and spinach, we love to munch on it anyway.

Ron Sabatula and Roy Jenkins wait for their food to digest.

John Hughes tries to hide his school lunch.

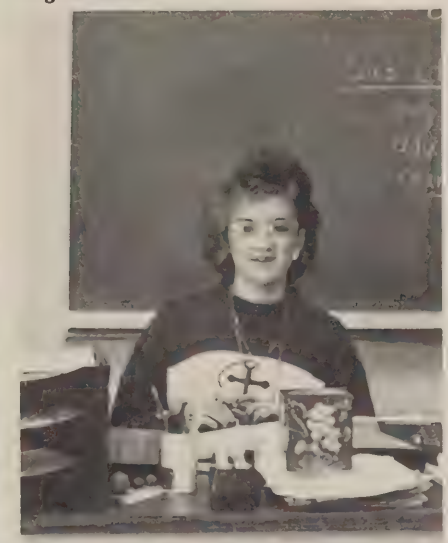
Donn Upole and Tony Bittinger enjoy their icy, cold, creamy milkshakes during lunch.

Special Activities Add Excitement

Each year on Teacher Swap Day, students are chosen to teach the way they think is best for one class. The regular teacher assumes the role of a student and listens while the "new teacher" takes over. These students are given the chance to "do it their way." Each participate received a large, juicy apple and a certificate of appreciation.

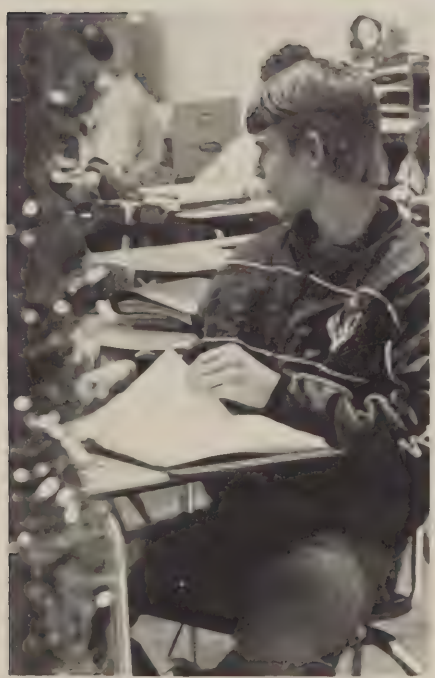
Another activity that was recently introduced was the decorating of the classroom doors for the Christmas holidays. Two homeroom periods were given to the students so they could let their artistic abilities shine through. The doors were judged at the end of the day by carefully selected teachers. The winning doors, Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Spurrier's rooms, were Room 213 and 215.

Olila McElroy pauses while she teaches her English class.



Tommy Hare adds his thoughts in math.

The guys in drafting all have their own thoughts on how the class should be taught.



The tinsel brings out the Christmas spirit in Greg Gilpin's room.

Danny Teats waits outside the decorated doors before entering Santa's workshop.

Homecoming

Homecoming 1987 was held Friday, September 17. The Northern Husky football team fought their way through the pouring down rain to cream the Petersburg Vikings. The Northern students celebrated afterwards at the homecoming dance sponsored by the varsity cheerleaders. Jenni Golden was crowned homecoming queen. Her senior court included Latisha Lapp, Kendra Frazee, Christine McKenzie, and Vicki Yoder. This year Jenni Golden's court also consisted of two girls from each grade.

Homecoming Queen, Jenni Golden, poses with her escort John Joe Friend.

Debbie Rounds and her escort, Steve Morton, look forward to getting out of the rain.

The Huskies prepare to fight the Petersburg Vikings on the sloppy field.

Kim Green and Jason Rush wait patiently in the pouring rain for the results.

Kendra Frazee, Todd Wagner, Vicki Yoder, and Rodney Lipscomb eagerly await the outcome of the Homecoming queen decision.

Wipe Out

John Hughes, Laurie Stanton, Maggie Rawe, and Chad Sines are the ninth grade court.

Carla Graham was escorted by Jeff Rounds to the homecoming events.

The new addition of the junior court brought forth Darren McKenzie escorting Lisa Swauger and Debbie Rounds with Steve Morton.

The senior court and escorts consisted of Christine McKenzie, Kendra Frazee, Jenni Golden, Vicki Yoder, Latisha Lapp, Eddie Lytle, Jason Rush, John Joe Friend, Rodney Lipscomb, and Eddie Tabor.

Lettermen Give A "Chill"

Students piled into the school to get out of the snow and cold while others danced to songs played by D.J. Barry McKay from Q-94. As the time grew near for the crowning of the snowball queen, a restless mood settled over the crowd. Each candidate received a carnation from the Lettermans Club. The candidates and their escorts became impatient with the passing of time. As the names of the candidates were announced by Eddie Lytle and Aaron Zumpano, the candidates walked to the stage to await the outcome. Sheli Bittinger was announced Snowball Queen and crowned by the previous Queen, Amy Mosser. Sheli's court was comprised of Kelli Stark, Jodi Broadwater, Kim Green, and Maggie Rawe. A loud applause was given by all the students. The dance was sponsored by the Lettermans Club and was held on Friday, February 5, 1988, after the basketball game against Northern and Southern.

The 1988 Snowball Queen, Sheli Bittinger, and her escort, Mike Snoberger, pose before going out to celebrate.

To The Snowball Dance

Freshman and sophomore candidates with their escorts nervously wait for the others to join them.

Vicki Yoder, Rodney Lipscomb, and Danny Eggleston decide what to do after the dance.

Kelli Stark, escorted by Bobby Martin, holds her rose after being announced twelfth grade princess.

Dave Yoder's out-of-school friends, Loren Broadwater and Sean Frederick, come back to visit him at the Snowball Dance.

Students get down to "Shout."

While dancing, Kristin Edwards, Trina Stanton, and Robin Bender chat about the latest gossip.

Catch The Wave

Once again the talent show has proven that creativeness abounds in Northern's students. Wednesday, March 16 brought Petrina Jones into the spotlight once again. She received first place for her version of "Could Have Been." The second place award was received by Janice Spiker and Alex Hicks. They performed a jazz musical with Janice on the piano and Alex on drums. Tracey Murray captured third place while Pam and Tammy Brenneman were given the students choice award by the judges. The Brennemans closed the categories by singing and dancing to "Rocky Top." The audience had an interesting mood as they clapped to cheer on the talent. Fred Holliday, MC, put his share in with comedy. The judging, which was done by Jo Ann Robinson, Linda Buckel, and Lilian Reckner, was held after lunch while the eleventh and twelfth graders eagerly watched their friends on stage.

Petrina Jones, receiving first place, sings her heart out to "Could Have Been."

The Students Choice award was given to Pam and Tammy Brennaman for their singing and dancing to "Rocky Top."

Tracy Murray received third in putting her all into her dance routine to "Insecurity."

Of Talent

Janice Spiker and Alex Hicks received second place by playing a jazz musical.

Some of the stupid freshman tricks included Ron Knox in the calling of wood.

Ellisa Schofield showed amazing talent as she played piano and sang to "Arms of Love."

M.C., Fred Holliday and Debbie Cook entertain between each individual performance.

The wave of talent was twisted as the band, Clay Carlton, Dave Yoder, Kirby King, Alex Hicks, and Danny Georg, played "Mama, We're all Crazy Now."

Annual FFA Sweetheart Queen Crowned

Students danced to keep things going before the crowning of the Future Farmers of America Sweetheart Queen. The two nominees, Jennifer Birkby and Linda Bowser, walked to the stage to hear the announcement of the new queen. Darla Broadwater, last year's queen, and her escort, Kevin Wassell, kept the new, unexperienced nominees company as the crowd waited for the results. As there was a break of silence in the crowd, first runner up, Linda Bowser was announced. Darla Broadwater crowned Jennifer Birkby the new 1988 queen as she received flowers. Everyone congratulated Jennifer as D.J., Rhonda Keefer from Go 106, played a special slow dance for the new queen and runner-up. On the second slow dance all the other students joined in. The Sweetheart dance was held on February 26, 1988 after the basketball game against Valley.

Nominee, Linda Bowser, last year's queen, Darla Broadwater, and this year's queen, Jennifer Birkby, pose with their escorts.

A Celebration For Skiers

1988 Winterfest queen, Sandy Lewis and her date Sean Jones, start things off by going to the kick-off party.

Winterfest, which is celebrated annually at the end of the season at the Wisp, was outstanding this year. Spring was in the air as the temperature hit the 70's during the weekend of March 11-13. The skiers didn't seem to mind the warm weather while they had a blast on the slopes. The winterfest queen, Sandy Lewis, appeared at all of the activities as a representative of Northern High School.

Some of the events included in Winterfest were the fun races, snowmobile climb and the scholastic school races. A new addition to the activities was the water crossing in which skiers must ski across a pool of ice cold water. In the races between Northern and Southern, four Northern students received awards in their respective grade divisions for their accuracy and speed on the slope. Tracey Glotfelty, a freshman, received second place, Matt Bach raced for the eleventh grade guys and received third place, Kelli Iden, a junior, was awarded third place, while Charlotte Bowman, a junior, placed second in her division. As another year ended, skiers prepared for the '88-'89 year.

Charlotte Bowman and Lorin Morris, racers for Northern, have a blast on their last day of skiing.

Jenni Golden and Dixie Browning pose between races at the Wisp.

Be Creative In

Tanya Burdock, Kim Frantz, Diane Bender, and Joy Holliday amuse themselves at Summit Lake Camp for a FHA Leadership Conference.

Everyone does something besides homework. What do you do in your spare time? Outside activities differ with every person. Some people prefer to do crafts and play games at home, while others would rather be running all over the countryside, enjoying themselves while in the company of friends. Everyone has some activity they like to do. How much fun the activity is, is in the eye of the beholder. Some of the guys at Northern have become volunteer firemen. They take hard classes that prepare them for accidents. In order for these guys to fight fires they must be 18 years old. If they are under 18, they then set up blockades, direct traffic, and help the fire fighters. Some of our volunteer firemen are Terry Bittinger, Jesse Opel, Jeff Rounds, John Vought, Kevin Wassel, and Eric Yommer. Another summer activity is skate boarding. It has become a popular sport for people who enjoy doing tricky and dangerous stunts. Our skate board fanatics include Max Dabansky, Chad Fike, Brian Hensley, Jay Ross, and Frank Stark.

No matter what it is that students enjoy, having fun is the ultimate goal.

In Mary Thomas's free time, she enjoys hitting the slopes and skiing in the sun.

Northern High Theatre Department establishes another great success of the play "The Curious Savage" directed by Dr. Snelson and assisted by Ms. Perfetti and Ms. Rotruck. The stage manager was Elizabeth Otto and the cast members included: Debbie Cook, Jenni Golden, Sheli Bittinger, Kina Perry, Mary Georg, Lori Minick, Ellisa Schofield, Alex Hicks, Greg Holtschneider Philip Rodeheaver, and Fred Holliday. They showed their talented acting skills throughout the production, held on April 13 and 14, 1988 for all high school grades and the 15th for the whole community. It was also shown to the middle school students.

"The Curious Savage" was about an old woman, Ethel Savage, who uses the estate left to her by her deceased husband to set up a charity fund. Her stepchildren, trying to keep the money for themselves, have her committed in an asylum, "The Cloisters." She makes friends with the patients and learns that their way of thinking is more sane than some "normal people." Students overall impression of the play was shown by their cheers and applauses as humor was displayed throughout the play.

Lily Belle (Kina) comes up with a scheme to trick Mrs. Savage out of her money.

Mrs. Savage (Debbie) shows a newspaper photo of Lily Belle to Fairy May (Sheli) and Florence (Jenny).

Fairy May alerts everyone about the fire upstairs, which is "this high!"

That's The Ticket

Hannibal (Phil), Florence (Jenni), and Jeff (Alex) pass the evening playing a pleasant game of cards.

Mrs. Savage (Debbie) is astounded to find out that Ms. Willie (Lori) had the bonds all along.

With an innocent smile on her face, Mrs. Savage (Debbie) conceives a plan that will send Titus (Fred), Lily Belle (Kina), and Samuel (Greg) on a wild goose chase.

Hannibal (Phil), Jeff (Alex), and Fairy May (Sheli) look on as Dr. Emmett (Ellisa) questions Mrs. Paddy (Mary) about the missing bonds.

Prom Magic: A Way

After many days of rain, Northern studetns were ready for the hot sun that was expected to shine on Saturday, May 7. The Junior-Senior Prom, which was held in the McHenry House at the Wisp Resort, began at 5:30 as the guests lined up to get their pictures taken. The music for the evening was provided by Hot Mix.

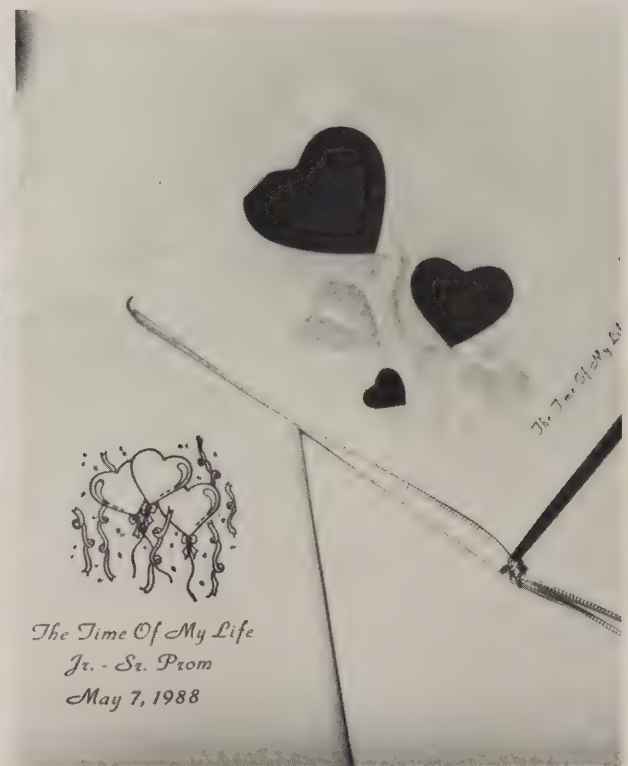
The advisor of the activity was Ms. Barbara Perfetti who was assisted by Mrs. Valerie Frazee. Ron "Bonkey" Hockman, the Master of Ceremonies, introduced the Junior and Senior class officers and announced the events for the evening. Bonkey Hockman also gave some of the seniors special "awards." Bill Bishoff received a pillow for his little naps. Debbie Cook was given a broom for sweeping everyone off their feet when she arrived at Northern. Jon Harmke received the diploma he always wanted. Fred Holiday was given a teething ring as a soothing agent for those times he looses his composure. Eric Martin, the "Cosmic Chemist," was awarded a huge eye dropper and a pair of goggles. Philip Rodeheaver got a pocket-sized can of hairspray to help him make it through the night. Carrie Stark was given a pocket planner for her bad memory. Eric Yommer received Pepto Bismol to relieve the burps he gets each day after lunch which he demonstrates in the hallway. Last but not least, Aaron Zumpano was given a bag with medicine to cure all illnesses he feels before tests. Following the gifts, the guests proceeded to the buffet table.

Tanya Burdock, Sandy Lewis, Barb McCarty, Connie McKenzie, and Judy Sisler were the candidates for Prom Queen. Connie McKenzie, escorted by Terry Beal, was crowned as the 1988 Prom Queen by Mr. Green. The theme song, "Time of My Life," was then dedicated to the Queen and her court.

Pleasant weather, good food, music, and socializing with other students, made the 1988 Prom a time of their life for Northern juniors and seniors.

Mr. Green crowns the surprised 1988 prom queen, Connie McKenzie.

Stacy Bray and John Sherbin casually walk in from the warm and sunny evening.



The juniors and seniors will always have memories with "The Time Of My Life" tokens.

To End The Year

Many of the people that attended the prom enjoy dancing to the music provided by the band Hot Mix.

Jodi Broadwater, Darla Friend, Ron Hockman, Greg Iden, Brenda Miller, and Tanya Burdock have the honor of sitting at the head table during the prom dinner.

A Night

After the announcement of the prom queen, the candidates and their dates danced to the theme song.

Eric Frantz, Lorin Morris, Dave Swiger and his date talk to pass the time before going to the buffet table.

Tanya Burdock, Greg Holtschneider, Sandy Lewis, Sean Jones, Connie McKenzie, Terry Beal, Mike Robeson, and Judy Sisler line up for the announcement of prom queen.

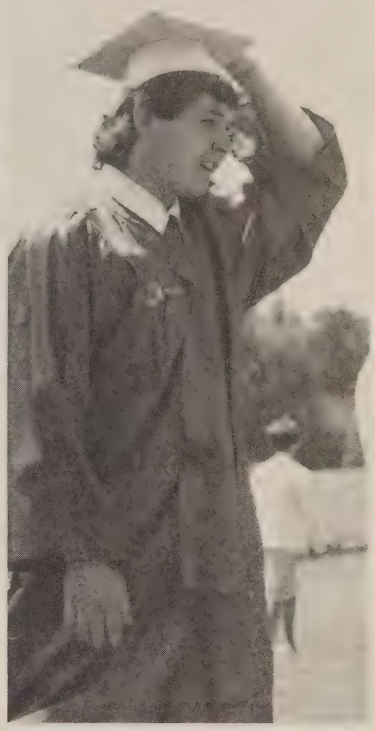
The windy day had everyone holding their caps including Steve Morton.



The graduates wait for the signal to enter onto the field.

For thirteen years the Class of 1988 fantacized about what would happen from graduation forward. Finally, the fantacizing was done, and reality had to be faced. Decisions had to be made because graduation was there.

Sunday, June 5 was one of the most important days for the 1988 class. It meant a begin-and a goodbye. The beginning of their life, however a goodbye to friends and teachers, individuals whom they had been with for many years. Together they grew and were taught, and therefore became friends.

The thirty-sixth annual graduation began at 1:00 p.m. The Seniors entered onto the football field single file to the song "Pomp and Circumstance." Mr. Edward Green welcomed all present and introduced Rev. Edd Meyers who gave the invocation. The Northern High Chorus then sang "Lean On Me." Following was the mantel ceremony and then remarks by the Salutatorian, Suzanne Bowser. Awards were presented by Mr Edward Green. Linda Oester followed the award presentation with her Valedictorian adress. The chorus then sang "We've Only Just Begun." Mr. John Braskey gave the commencement adress prior to Mr. Green's recommendations for diplomas. Awarding of the diplomas was by Mrs. Anna Mary Fratz. "Yesterday Once More" was also sung by the Chorus and then Rev. Edd Meyers gave the benediciton. Following the the recessional played by Janice Spiker, the graduates gave their caps a toss to conclude the ceremony.

Trip Down Memory Lane

Singing the "Love Boat" song, riding in the front seat of the Laser Loop, taking a wet ride down the Raging Rapids, screaming with murderous terror, great food, Polka music, laughing, and the open air deck of the Gateway Clipper are some memories of the 1988 Senior Trip. May 17 was a crazy day filled with fun and excitement. Walking into NHS ready to board the chartered buses with jams, food, radios, and evening clothes were the 94 seniors and chaperones who were anxious for the day's adventure. It was a comfortable ride to Kennywood and seniors were ready for hair-raising rides at the park. Screams of terror could be heard as the seniors rode the Laser Loop, Jack Rabbit, and other scary rides. When students felt the need to cool off, they drenched each other in the Log Jammer, and were sprayed from the rapids of the other water rides.

Late afternoon, anxious for more fun, seniors rushed to the bathrooms to make the dreadful change from their shorts, T-shirts, and tank tops, to dress pants, dresses, and dress shoes.

While taking a cruise down the Ohio, Monongahela, and Youghiogheny rivers on the Gateway Clipper, seniors ate delicious food and lingered on the top deck to enjoy the fading sun and cool breeze. Although the Seniors could have handled even more excitement, the trip on the Clipper came to a remarkably quick close, and the long journey to Garrett County began. Weary travelers arrived at 1:30, and many absences were noted the following day due to such a fun filled, but exhausting trip.

Seniors take a break from sightseeing.

Seniors cool off on the deck.

Teresa Yoder and Michelle Lowery gaze at the sights.

Seniors patiently await their meal on the Gateway Clipper.

Husky fans—Diane Lehr, Marjorie Quade, Vicki Yoder, Melissa Beeman, and Regina VanSickle—answer with a boisterious shout about the question of whose class can yell the loudest.

Through the long journey of high school with our ups and downs, we made it hand in hand as a whole class. Seniors wil be glad to graduate from high school. In Missy Fazenbaker's eyes, she says, "It feels great to be a senior; it took lots of work to get this far; but she made it." Even though our senior year is supposed to be fun and exciting, several students are tired of the same tradition of going to Kenneywood for the senior class trip. One student commented "since our theme is 'A Style of Our Own,' I think we should go somewhere no other class has ever gone before." Ronda Humberson feels "we should break the tradition and go to a different, more exciting place than Kennywood, We Deserve It!"

A Dream Come True

Class Prayer

By: Connie McKenzie

Heavenly Father,

As we go our different ways, we want to thank you for all of the memories, dreams, and experiences we have shared throughout our years at Northern High School. Thank you for not only watching over us in laughter, but also in tears. Guide us as we continue to grow and strive to make this day a beginning, not an end. Let us never forget our treasured friendships or this special moment.

Amen

Class Motto

We'll set our goals high as we reach for the sky. Never turning our backs on the past as we go about our lives.

A Style Of Underclassmen

Juniors

Trena Falk

Junior Class Officers: Miss Perlriti-Advisor, Lisa Swauger-Vice President, Debbie Rounds-Treasurer, Jodi Broadwater-President, Rodney Frazee-Secretary.

Nate Emory works on completing a project in computer science.

Debbie Baker and Ida Faidley meet between classes for a chat.

Kina Perry stands in the background as Mrs. Pratt's daughter, Egan, takes the spotlight.

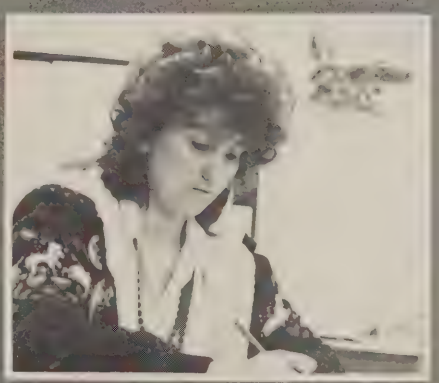
Senior Greg Holtschneider lounges with Kim Hinebaugh as Kristen Coone uses Greg's knee as a headrest. Bonkey Hockman, Danny Eggleston, and Nate Emory are in hopes of more relaxation as they wait the bus's repair.

What a cute grin!—Steve McClintock

Nothing like doing the limbo. Danny Eggleston limbos under the ever steady stick as Kevin Sines and Nate Emory inch it down lower and lower.

Tony Bittinger sits in class totally unaware of the camera.

Why worry about going home? The finale of the U. of MD campus computer trip ends with students such as Connie Miller and Khiem Horchler loafing as the bus tire gets replaced.



Patty Broadwater concentrates on completing her homework.

One hundred fifty-four students make up this year's junior class. This is the largest class in the school, even topping the seniors. The junior class carried out many fund raisers and activities to benefit the prom. These include candy bar sales and other activities. Four students are mainly responsible for organizing our prom. They are the class officers: Jodi Broadwater- President, Lisa Swauger-Vice President, Rodney Frazee- Secretary, and Debbie Rounds- Treasurer.

Endeavoring to solve a geometry proof, Nate Emory and Craig Umbel pay close attention to the given explanation.

Chuck Hetz revs up his engine on the simulator and gets ready to zoom away.

Crystal Keefer can't drive 55 in this, but Steve Glotfelty, Charles Hetz, and Charles Wright wish they could.

Climbing into the Driver Education car, Ricky Eggleston prepares to take a spin.

Stephanie Young gets set to take off cruisin'.

Lets Go Cruisin' Now

The best thing about being a sophomore is Driver Education? Probally not, but getting your license is extremely important to this tenth grade class.

Students don't realize how hard it is to drive. Parallel parking in between two cars, pulling in and out of small spaces, and making a three point turn in a narrow road are just a few of the problems students face when they take Driver Education.

All people know that driving can be dangerous, so Driver Education is required by the State of Maryland to receive a drivers license. To some this is a drawback, because they have to sit in another class. However, most students taking the Driver Education course find it very exciting and even fun! The class is a way to experience on the road driving in various weather conditions and driving circumstances. The students also use simulators to experience types of hazards and signs that need to be followed to prevent accidents. The objective of the class is to develop a safe driver and a good traffic citizen. So shift it into high gear and take Driver Education, it's the safe way to go.

If you're looking for some class action, you've come to the right place. Do you want the lowdown on what's up with this year's Freshman class? We thought you did, so here it is . . .

At the sound of the bell approximately 130 Freshmen jam into the already packed hallways, pushing and shoving, working their way to one destination - their locker. As their combination pulses through their brain, they spin the dial and jerk open the locker. Snatching up their books and materials, they begin their journey to classes such as Civics, Earth Science, English, Math, and Physical Education. Each of these classes have one thing in common. They are all required classes that ninth graders must take during their first year at the High School. Students know that classes like these mean homework, exams, and lots of paper filled with scatterings of scribbles called notes. To ninth graders, classes at Northern High are more difficult than the classes they had in the Middle School. They find themselves working much harder to achieve good grades. However, in the end, most ninth graders will agree that all the hard work is definitely worth it.

A Style Of Learning

Math And Science Students Solve World Problems

Tony George joins Wesley Loar to help him figure out an algebra problem.

Leaning closer to his work, Rick Jenkins concentrates on his assignment.

48 + (3w + 3z) x ÷ 2= 348. Ugh! Not another equation with two variables.

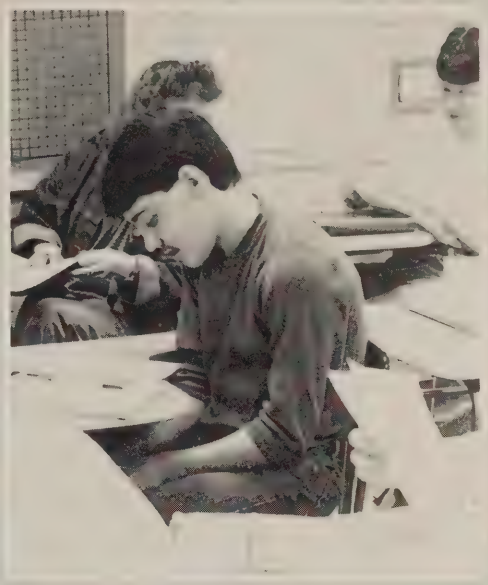
Math is a puzzling way to solve the "problems" of the world. The classes range from general to advanced. These include regular math, algegra, geometry, trigonometry, and calculus. Math is confusing and challenging but is something that needs to be taken to graduate. Some students consider it an exciting type of challenge, others consider it boring. By gaining a solid background in math, students will be able to solve their "problems" in the future.

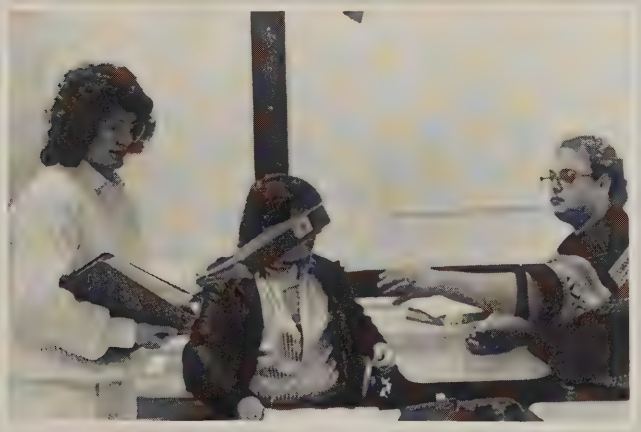
Mrs. Welborn's math class gets their assignment out to be checked.

Doing a group project, Kim Green, Vicki Stark, and Dana Friend work out their problems.

Preparing for their lab, John Sherbin and Jason Rush go over the instructions.

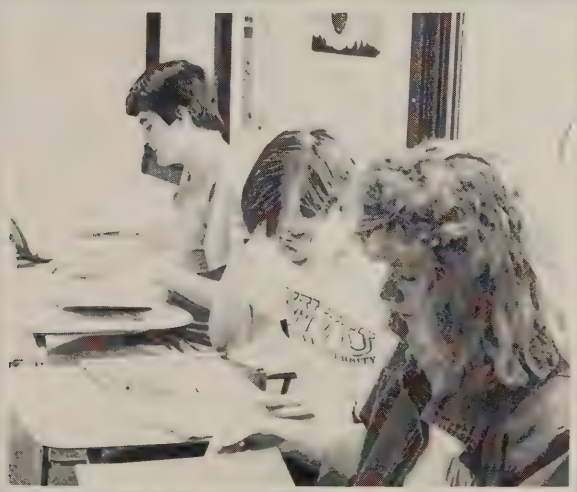
In Earth Science, Chad Sines checks the answers to his test.





Miss Forno, Mrs. Frazee's student teacher, returns the graded notebook to Jimmy Bevan and Marvin Murphy.

Taking a moment of silence, Connie Wiland mourns over dead Earnest, the skeleton.



Keeping up with their studies, Heather Golden, Andrea Yelovich, and Dave Brenneman are all hard at work.

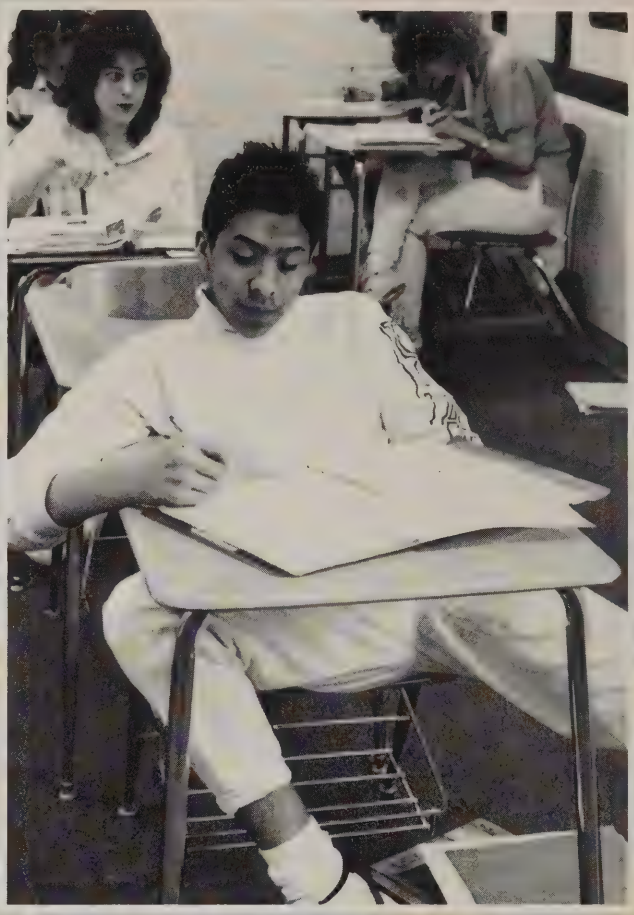
Science is the students way to gain knowledge of what people, plants, and minerals are made up of. It is a way to let people know what makes the human body function. Through experimenting and studying, people can see things than can be helpful or harmful.

The classes which allow students to gain this information are earth science, biology, chemistry, anatomy and physics. Two of these science classes must be taken to graduate.

Gaining insight into technology, theory, and facts that will lead us into the future is what science consists of.

French - The Language Of Love

Leaning back, Lee Holloway relaxes himself to further concentrate on his work.



Ms. Norris' French II class refers to each other as well as the back of their books for their translation assignment.

La Francais langue de' amour? French is not only the language of love but can also be helpful when entering into college since most colleges have foreign language requirements for college admission.

French is an exciting, interesting language to study. French I contains the basic words and phrases of the language. French II builds students' skills in sentence structure and conversational French. Exploration into French writing and French culture is stressed during this course. This class also gives the students a chance to visit Quebec City, Canada. In April, sixteen French students from N.H.S. joined eighteen French students from Southern and drove to Quebec City, Canada for a four night, five day visit.

Upon arriving students were thankful that their sixteen hour bus trip was over, and the excitement had just begun. Their days were filled with sightseeing and exploring. Students experienced culture shock upon entering the McDonald's Restaurant when they discovered that the menu was written in French. Instead of struggling with the pronunciation, students found it easier to point to what they wanted. The weather was cold, but students were warmed by the greetings and welcoming they received by the friendly tour guide, who answered all questions thoroughly. All in all, the trip was a success and filled with memories that will not easily be forgotten.

French III and IV also have the opportunity to go to Quebec City. These students concentrate on the specifics of the foreign language and study such things as literature, composition, and advanced grammar concepts.

French provides students with career benefits, enjoyment, challenge, and college admittance and also gives one a perfect opportunity to visit Quebec City, or even, Paris, France.

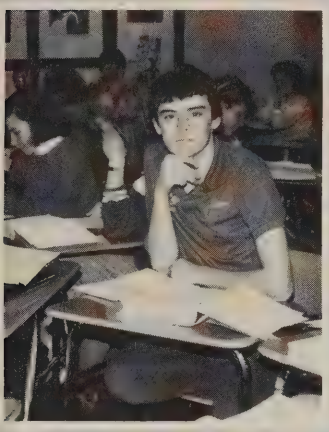
In French I, the class seems to have an endless flow of worksheets.

Terri Lapp writes her homework assignment on the board in hopes the French translation is correct.

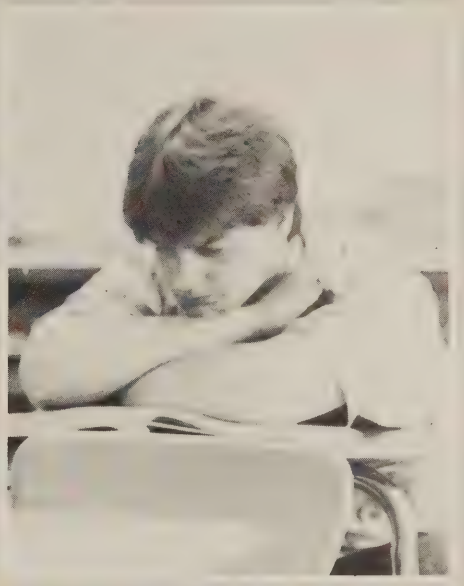
From Dangling Participles To American Folklore

In English Suzie Bowser and Tish Lapp talk away the last few minutes of class.

Dave Brenneman



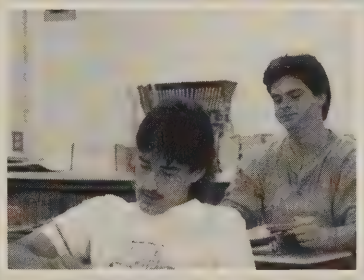
Teresa Durst and Elonda Bittinger find the Vocabulit lesson rather funny.



Cramming in the information, Eric Frantz reads through his text book.

Jimmy Stevens cracks a smile to warm the audience for his speech.

Steve Glotfelty and Shawn Fratz take notes in review for their final.



Blair Bittinger and Barney Billmeyer sit packed up and ready to go.

English, which includes polishing up on literary skills, is a required subject for all twelve years of school. From dangling participles to American Folklore, the teachers at Northern High School make the subject of English most interesting. For instance, Miss Brown tries to relate things the students learn in class to the outside world particularly when the class is studying literature. In Miss Miller's class, students can make their own choices from a variety of activities to be completed.

Every teacher has his or her own teaching methods; they place emphasis on varying topics or procedures. "Writing skills are the primary focus in my class," said Miss Brown, "since the Functional Writing Test must be passed by all students." Mrs. Davis states, "I tend to emphasize understanding and appreciating literature as well as the writing process."

English is the most vital subject taught because without it students would be unable to proceed with other subjects which involve reading and writing skills.

Learning For A Lifetime

Becky Meyers looks to her Database Application book for further instructions.

Vocational classes are a good way to get the jump on "real life" job situations. They are designed and programmed to prepare the student for entry-level employment upon graduation from high school as well as furnish a sound basis for advanced study.

Are you interested in managing or owning a farm in the future? If you are, then Agriculture is an excellent curriculum to advance one's experience in animal science, agriculture, mechanics, crop production, plant science, livestock production, farm management, and soil and water management.

The program designed to introduce seniors to the many careers available in the fields of health care is Allied Health. Students learn about the digestive, circulatory, muscular, and skeletal integumentary systems. Included is an on the job exposure to some occupations in the health field two days a week at Garrett Memorial Hospital.

Auto Mechanics is a program which provides training in malfunctions and repair of engines, cooling, exhaust, fuel, brakes, air conditioning, and emission control. Several services are provided by the Auto Mechnics department which include working on various students and teacher's automobiles.

Brick, Block, and Stonemasonry is a program that prepares students to lay bricks, and/or blocks. This program includes instruction in laying out spacing bonds; cutting, notching, and shaping blocks, bricks, and stone to construct or repair walls, and fireplaces.

Booting up the IBM, taking dictation, messing up another manuscript are just a few of the events that take place in Business Education. "In business courses, students learn the application of the subject matter that is taught; thus, they develop functional skills to use in the job market," said Mrs. Graham. Business Education is taught to help each student achieve an understanding and knowledge of business terminology and basic business concepts. "Business Education and vocational courses offer students, from basic to academic, marketable job skills to use whenever they may need them in a lifetime," said Mrs. Nice.

For the person who is always on the level, and likes to be treated square, Carpentry is your class. "Building trades is an excellent opportunity for students to obtain skill which can be used to gain meaningful employment upon graduation," states Mr. Montgomery. "These acquired skills should be a useful asset even for the future DIY(do it yourself) person later in life." Any student who is interested in lay outs, erecting, installing, and repairing wooden structures is likely to take the Carpentry class. The course consists of safety rules, framing, construction materials, blueprint reading, roofing, and insulation of homes. One of the major projects that the Carpentry class prepared was a house that was put up for retail sale. The house was an ongoing year project, however, other projects were completed during the year. The house was auctioned off Saturday, May 14, and Sunday, May 15, to the highest bidder.

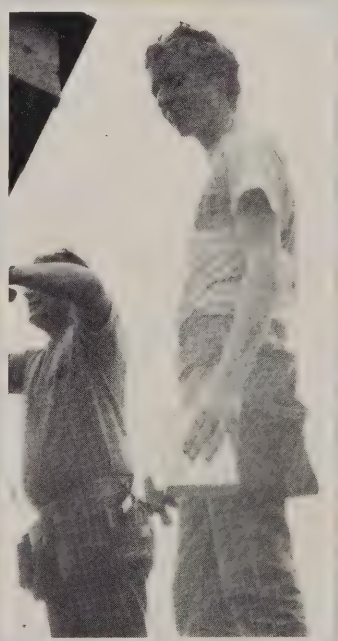
To plan, prepare, and understand mechanical, architectural, and other drawings, drafting is the class to take. It also teaches how to use reproduction materials, equipment and processes, and to develop models.

Industrial Electronics is a program which prepares students to install, operate, repair and maintain electronic equipment used in industry. The course consists of the instruction in using various types of controls, principles of electronics, DC and AC current, and circuitry.

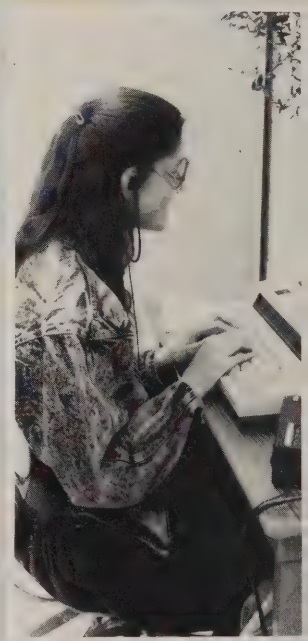
For students that are interested in careers in the broad field of marketing, there is Marketing Education. The course consists of marketing techniques, consumer behavior and job seeking skills. One of the highlights of the marketing class was a combined trip with Southern to Century III Mall in Pittsburgh. The group was informed by representatives from Horne's department store as well as Miller's department store of the various job opportunities in business, including marketing careers and schooling.

With the variety of classes to take, students can get the "jump" on real life job situations.

Working swiftly on their typing assignment, LeAnn Schmidt and Tracy Fazenbaker are sure not to make an error.



While working on the siding of the house for Carpentry class, Bill Burrow and Rick Sisler concentrate on keeping their balance.

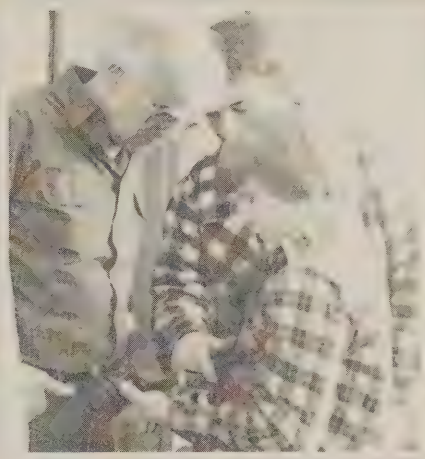


Diane Yoder listens carefully to each word so that her transcription is accurate.

Leroy Nicol is framing a header for a 8' x 7' overhead door while Matt Bach assists.

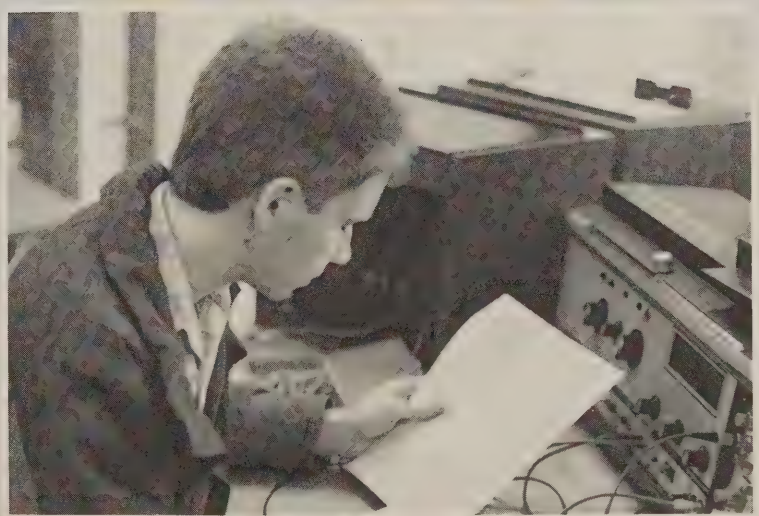
Naomi Bowser consults Kevin Beitzel on the assignment in Drafting.

Concentrating intensely on a Data Processing assignment, Tammy McKenzie and Betty Fazenbaker proceed with their WordStar commands.



Chris Jenkins and Ron Knox solve their Electronic Math problems together.

Packed up ready to go, Barnie Billmeyer, Mike Brenneman, and Blair Bittinger wait patiently for the bell.



Looking at an EGR Plate from Jesse Opel's car, Mr. Hetrick and J. P. Frye comment on what to do next.

After a day of selling supplies in the school store, Tina Platter closes up for the day.

Kenneth Bowser, are you loafing again?

Hands On Experience

Mrs. Klotzbaugh supports the Vocational Agriculture class by purchasing garden plants from Amy Lewis.

In the greenhouse, Lisa Fike waters the plants to ensure proper growth.

Stripping parts from a Gravley walkbehind tractor, Matt Bach works patiently.

Randy Harman and Todd House work swiftly at their rock picking assignment.

Having only a limited amount of time left, Ricky Perando works quickly to complete the block-style letter.

Doing some needed work around the greenhouse, Bob Getty puts the tractor to work.

During Trowel Trades, Keith Wiley and Todd Sisler lay blocks and check to make sure they are level.

Brent Yoder works quickly to get his project done.

Latisha Lapp gets fresh linens to make the hospital bed.

John Joe Friend and Keith Wiley mix cement for the blocks on the new wall.

Instead of "goofing off" Trina Stanton, you should pay attention to data processing.

Producing Creating, And Designing To Success

Waiting for further instructions, Christy Frye is anxious to complete her Home-Ec. project.

As Jon Folk and Keith Grove ready themselves for the unveiling of their project, John Vought looks on from the background.

Using only a pencil and ruler, Regina Vansickle decides what she is going to design.

DOODLING . . . That's Okay, you are in art class. Art is a creative way to express one's feelings without being yelled at for doodling. Mrs. Pratt, the art teacher, teaches exciting courses in art. The classes include Art History as well as Art I-IV.

Many projects are planned, worked on, scrapped, and started over again. Some projects included: carving linoleum, sketching landscapes, pen and ink drawings, painting and printing.

The majority of the things one does deals with the hand, eye, and mind coordination skills. Working hard and being creative is what art is about.

Wallpapering Miss Wucik's office, listening to guest speakers, upholstering the furniture for the school play, "Curious Savage," decorating, cooking, and eating foreign foods, sewing and learning more about our families and each other are just a few of the activities the Home Economics classes were involved in during this school year.

One never knows when they walk into the Home Economics room what project Mrs. Law and the Home Ec. students will be tackling next. It could be baking hundreds of cookies for a parent visitation, sewing puppets for theatre or decorating the house built by carpentry students.

In the final year of Home Economics, girls and guys focus on their personal lifestyles. Balancing budgets, searching for a home, involving the aspects of renting, leasing, or owning, are ways in which they prepare for a future on their own.

The Home Economics room is a busy place, thanks to all the students who give their time, energy, ideas, and talent to make the program a success.

Assisting the carpentry house building, Lohri Sisler and Teresa Durst concisely fit the pieces of the miniature replica together.

Mary Thomas and Susan Cupler slide in for a combined hit on the volleyball court.

Phy-zzing Up!

Mrs. Robinson - retired physical education teacher.

Wendy Margroff lines up the basketball for a perfect shot.

Toning up bodies as well as minds can be done through the Physical Education Program. Every student coming from the Middle School is required to take a year of physical education. This is a welcome change of pace from the usual classroom routine of studying.

A very special teacher and friend, Mrs. Robinson, retired after 30 years of hard work in the Physical Education Department. Mrs. Robinson was also actively involved as a cheerleading advisor. She feels as though she will miss the students and the faculty. Some students describe her as "high spirited, energetic, easy going, friendly, school spirited and just easy to get along with." She will now spend her free time enjoying her hobbies which include: stained glass, aerobics, and craft work. The students will miss Mrs. "R" dearly.

Coach Speicher, the boy's physical education teacher, still remains teaching at NHS after thirteen years. He is actively involved as the girls varsity basketball coach.

Spiking the volleyball, smashing ping pong balls, slam-dunking basketballs, ripping the flag off other students, and pumping iron are some of the students favorite activities.

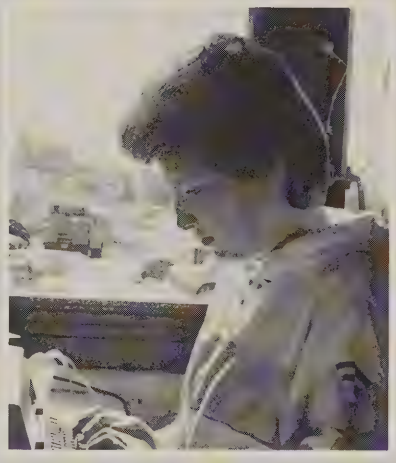
Steadying her gym basket on her head, Stacy Carlson gives a cheery expression.

Kim Cross jumps fully clothed into the shower to cool off.

Pictures, Poses, And Presses!

David Miller and Amy Thomas, the darkroom technicians, developed approximately 1000 pictures during the 1988 school year.

Leafing through her page envelopes, Moya Fash makes sure her pages are completed.



To meet the final deadline for the Senior section Jan Thomas quickly types a copysheet.

Mary Thomas, co-editor, and Cheryl Stanton, editor, discuss the upcoming deadlines.

Croppers, copy fitters, 3R forms, 3C copysheets, orange grease pencils, and an endless stream of thoughts, hardwork, and time made the 1988 North Star yearbook possible.

Starting in the summer with workships, staffers dedicated time and effort into the yearbook. For instance, Cheryl Stanton and Amy Thomas spent an exhausting week at a seminar at Denison University, Ohio. Amy and Cheryl were taught more on the basics of layout design, new trends, and complex developing and printing of photographs.

As the North Star staff entered the room in the fall, they were surprised with another new yearbook advisor. After receiving one more new advisor, Ms. Brown got the yearbook staff on the move with the help of Cheryl Stanton, editor, and Jan Thomas and Mary Thomas, co-editors.

With the extensive advertisement campaign, money started coming in to cover the immense price. Staffers pushed to meet deadlines.

When looking back in the yearbook ten years later, an individual may sigh upon all the things that happened during that school year and either feel a sense of pleasure or pain.

Jessica Savage keeps a steady hand so as not to cut the wrong headline out.

"Get a story, interview, and pictures. Come on, come on we have a deadline to meet." This phrase has been heard many times in the newspaper room. The Northern High School newspaper, The Viking, helps to keep the students aware of all the things that happen in school as well as in the community. The newspaper staff is composed of seventeen people with their editor, Marla Handwerk. The staff works together, plays together, and stays after school to keep a newspaper circulating approximately every two months. It all starts with the staff sitting around bouncing ideas off each other trying to get a good story. Then when they get the "perfect" story, they go to work: researching, studying, and interviewing. After countless rough drafts, the staff types the final copy. Then the layouts are completed. The materials are then sent in for printing. The final product results in: THE VIKING.

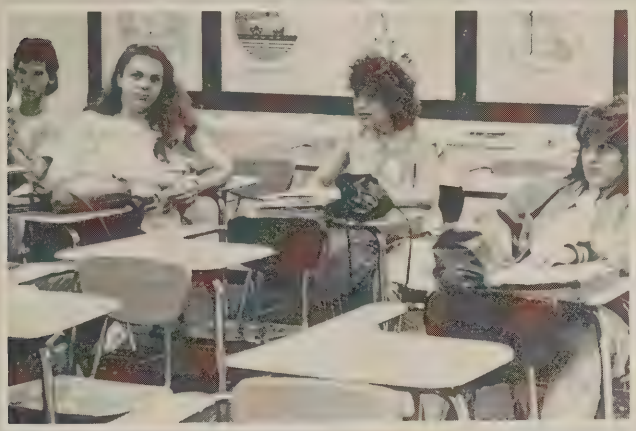
Planning For The Future

Listening closely, Linda Cosner, Leilani Noble, and Vicki Yoder ready themselves to execute the job information given by Mrs. Douds.



After looking around at Career Day, Kina Perry, Jennifer Birkby, and Carol Resh discuss the possibilities of going to Penn State.

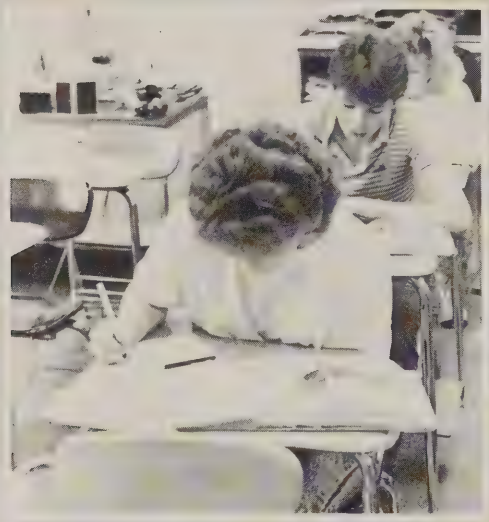
Trying to get her assignment done on time, Tammy Guthrie works up a storm.

After an eventful day, Valerie Beitzel, Sandy Lewis, Jason Rush, and John Harmke get back on the buses for the ride back to Northern.

Looking for a career? Career Employ-ability is an excellent class for students planning to get a job during or after high school. The promise of a job that satisfies each individual is often contrasting. Mrs. Douds, the Career Employability teacher, deals with finding the right job for students according to each individual's personality. Organizing career objectives leads to students recognizing their goals and gaining valuable experience for the future. Career Employ-ability prepares individuals that are seeking work by allowing one to know what to expect about a particular career.

For insight on how to plan the future, there is Career Day. Both Juniors and Seniors from Northern and Southern were packed tight and stuffed on buses with their packed lunches to travel to Garrett Community College on May 5, 1988. At this all-day occasion, students learned of various job opportunities available from many different college representatives, area businesses, and the military. Depending on students needs and concerns, representatives were willing to meet with students individually or in small group sessions to discuss career goals.

Oh, No Not Another War



Copying notes from an overhead projector in world history, Dixie Browning writes feverishly to meet the ten minute time limit.

Oh No! Not another war. Social studies class is an informing way to let students know what happened in our country's past that helped Americans achieve freedom, the structure of governmental affairs, and the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. Social studies may even deal with the behavior of humans.

Three social studies credits are necessary for graduation. One must be United States history and one must deal with contemporary issues including local, state, and national governments. The credits may be obtained by taking Civics, World History, U.S. History, Geography of Maryland, or Psychology II.

Students find the social studies classes informative and beneficial in understanding present problems. Just as we are creating a ''style of our own,'' our forefathers have left us many of their customs and styles, which we now study in today's society.

Tommy Haer- Are you serious, read all of this in 20 minutes?

Invitations, table cloths, guest speakers, green beans, flower arrangements, certificates, plaques, chicken, entertainment, and dessert were just a few of the items that needed to be prepared before Monday, May 16th. This was the evening for the sixth annual Northern High School Student Council Honors Banquet.

At seven o'clock, Dianna Vitez, Student Council President, welcomed all in attendance, and was then proceeded by Becky Meyers, who gave the invocation. Dinner followed and then dessert was served.

All of the guests enjoyed the entertainment provided by Petrina Jones, Alex Hicks, and Janice Spiker. Petrina started off by singing "The Greatest Love of All," and then sang "Honestly," while being accompanied by Janice Spiker, pianist, and Alex Hicks on the drums. Concluding the entertainment, was the song "Just Fooling Around," which was composed by Janice. She played the song on the piano, while Alex accompanied.

Following the entertainment was guest speaker, Marjorie Fratz, who spoke on specific ingredients necessary for success. However, the most exciting was yet to come: the recognition and awards given out by Miss Wucik, Dianna Vitez and Mr. Green.

The twenty-four distinguished honor roll students received a certificate of achievement. The thirty-five students of the month were presented with a certificate. Out of these thirty-five students one student was chosen by faculty members as the student of the year. The students who received this award were Linda Oester, twelfth grade, Kimberly Hinebaugh, eleventh grade, Angie Resh, tenth grade, and Mary Thomas, ninth grade.

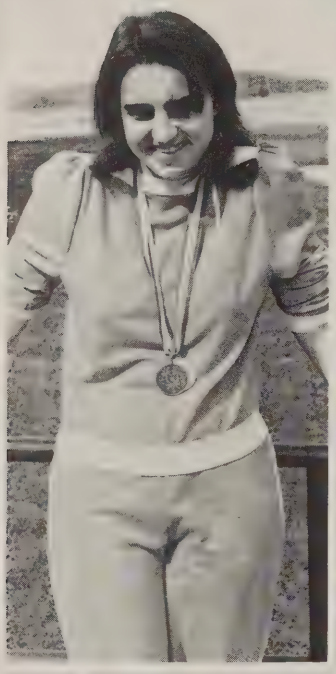
The class of 1988 contained fourteen students in the top ten percent. These individuals were recognized for this accomplishment.

Next, eight students were recognized with the outstanding student award. A male and female were chosen from each grade. They are as follows: John Hughes, Heather Golden, Jay Ross, Stacy Bray, Ronald Hockman, Kina Perry, Steve Morton, and Sheli Bittinger. Eleven vocational advisory awards were also presented to deserving students.

Outstanding Students of The Year- John Hughes, Heather Golden, Ron Hockman, Sheli Bittinger, Steve Morton.

Special Training For Special People

Enjoying their dinner, Mary Bowser, Christy Frye, and Wilbert Younkin eat their dessert.



Mary Bowser shows off her two silver medals for Nordic cross country sking and the one kilometer race.

After exercising the top part of her legs, Christy Frye tries to relax.

Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Fink, Jeff Williams, Chris VanSickle, and Denise Stanton relish the cookout.

Fishing was a success for Billy Hare on the Special Ed. field trip.

The special education students don't let any grass grow under their feet. They're always busy and working hard. For instance, they baked cookies to go on a shopping spree. Students have hands on experience with earning, saving, and spending money. The students learn how to use a budget, balance a checkbook, and also learn measurements. The best part about special ed., that the students enjoy is the "lets talk" sessions, where students and teachers talk out their problems and try to solve them as a group. The special education teachers help everyone to put their best foot forward.

The CPA class helps students to understand daily life and some of the decisions that go on around them. This program is included in the Special Ed. program, but focuses on students with special needs and concerns.

Lady Huskies vollied their way to the top in Garrett County. Beginning with the first match of the season against the Calvary Christian Eagles through the last match against the Southern Rams, the Lady Huskies tallied an impressive 11-3 regular season record. By winning four matches against Class A and B schools, including Fort Hill and Allegany plus cross-country rival, Southern twice, the Lady Huskies boosted their point average to 4.29 at home which earned them a fourth place seed in the Region I playoffs at Hagerstown Community College.

Region I was enlarged to include eleven teams this year. Only the top four seeds compete in the volleyball playoffs; consequently, to earn a seed in regional playoffs was a real accomplishment for the Lady Huskies.

Donna Stanton congratulates Laura Sines on a serve to victory.

When all was said and done, it wasn't over for the J.V. volleyball team. The girls battled every step of the way and this resulted in a 5-5 season.

Skillfully prepared, they took the breath right out of the Lady Rams, but this was just the beginning. The girls went on to win three in a row. Then it ended with a loss to Valley. This was the start of five losses in a row, but losing did not stop this young team. The squad went off to practice and regain their confidence and what a recovery they had! The J.V. team went on to defeat their last two opponents. Mr. Yunker stated if he had one thing to say about his girls, it would be that they had "the willingness to try."

Betty Miner prepares Angie Friend(not pictured) for a stylish spike with Olila McElroy waiting to assist.

Oh No, Not Again!

After a grand victory, the coach needs to "chill out"!

Stacy Fike feels the agony of the season as Mrs. Stough, trainer of the football team, tries to fix his shoulder, so he can continue to play.

What's this? Another injury!!! The JV football team must have been trying hard to win, considering all the mishaps that happened this year. There was every injury from dislocations and fractures to pulled muscles and concussions. Due to all the injuries, the coaches, Kevin Sines and Dave Frazee, had to cut the season short.

When asked how he felt about the early conclusion of their season, John Hughes states, "I didn't like it being cut short, but since we didn't have enough players, I can understand the coaches decision."

Several of the JV players felt that the Varsity team will improve a great deal in the future years. If they keep up this positive attitude, they should make Northern's future team a big success.

Watch out 'cause here we come!! It has been two long years since the Varsity football team has had the taste of victory on the football field, but that long deprivation came to an end this season. This year the team terminated Northern's losing streak with big wins over Immaculate Conception and Petersburg. Our team approached the season with a new, positive attitude, which was one of the goals that Coach Tom Vent set for the team. The players learned that working together with a sense of unity helped in their success.

There have been various changes made this year, such as summer football camp. Assistant coach DeVore stated, "It will now be starting a tradition." The coaches also developed an intensified weight training program for the team which has proved beneficial. Another improvement was a new scoreboard. The Northern High Athletic Department and the Board of Education donated this new scoreboard to the Huskies. With these improvements and steadfast determination, the team should begin a prosperous winning streak.

We've felt the "agony of defeat", now it's time for the "taste of victory"!

Midnight Madness! That's how the Varsity Basketball team started off the 87-88 season. On the first day of the season, the players met in the gym at 12:00 midnight for a shoot-a-thon. This was a new idea coming from a new head coach, Dave Bender.

Coach Bender stated, ''I considered it an honor and a challenge to have the opportunity to coach at my Alma mater—NHS.'' He also has a long term goal for Northern's basketball team. That goal is to earn the opportunity to play in the FINAL FOUR of the MPSSAA Championship playoffs. The team achieved part of this goal by attending the playoffs this year, but they were defeated in the first round. Coach Bender feels that the ingredients for future success are community and parental support, a dedicated coaching staff, and last, but certainly not least, are the student-athletes, who not only want to participate but want to excel!

During the Snowball Classic, the Huskies defeated Waynesburg, who ended their season with a 18-5 record. They moved on to play Southern. The ''Husky Hoops'' took our County Rivals to the wire, but were beaten be a score of Huskies 52, Rams 62.

Coach Bender demands certain things from his players. Because the team worked with dedication and effort, he rewarded the team with a ''1st class'' trip to a West Virginia University basketball game.

''I think the future is very bright for the Husky Hoops at NHS,'' stated by Coach Dave Bender.

Aaron Zumpano goes up back to back with his Southern opponent.

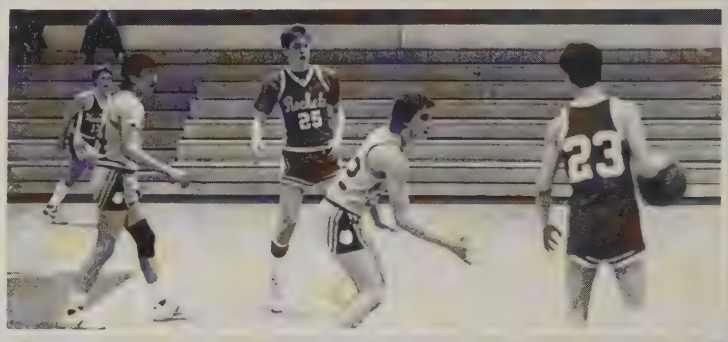
Jimmy Stevens and Danny Eggleston try to steal the ball as they get down on defense.



The 1987-'88 Northern J.V. basketball team started the season with very little experience. Kirby King, with one year of playing experience, led the team in scoring with 202 points while Jim Stevens scored a total of 147 points and shot 71% from the line.

The team made steady progress from the first day of practice to the last game of the season. Coach Yoder stated, "the team's steady progress was very satisfying and exciting. I feel, with hard work, this team has the potential to become a good team. As proven in our excellent performance against a strong Mt. Savage squad, and the fact that we played close with Beall and Valley late in the season after both teams blew us out early in the year is a good measuring stick of how far the team has come. But the best thing about this group is that they are not satisfied just to come close. They want to make the sacrifices necessary to WIN!"

The smell of leather, the sound of sneakers pounding the court and squealing on the smooth floor, sweat trickling down your face, long, cold bus rides, and voices yelling and screaming from every direction compose one major and enthusiastic sport, the sport of basketball. Basketball is not only challenging and fun to play, it is also entertaining to watch. Unlike many sports, basketball is easy to interpret for the viewer, but not so easy for the player. Offenses, defenses, presses, breaks, how many plays must the skilled athlete learn? All in all, the sport is very rewarding and proves to be an event one is not likely to forget.

This year both junior varsity and varsity girls basketball teams performed to the leadership of new coaches. The former boys basket ball coach, Coach Speicher, led the varsity girls through a successful and promising season. The varsity girls record as 9-12 proved to be the most outstanding varsity girls record in the history of Northern girls basketball. Junior, Kristen Edwards, assisted the varsity team's record with a well-earned 368 points, which dubbed her leading scorer of the area. First time coach, Coach McKenzie, assisted the junior varsity girls in a thrilling and ever-improving season despite their record of 0-15.

Next year's season is said to be even better than this year. With our talented and experienced players, there is no doubt that this statement will be proved true.

The 1987-1988 wrestling season protruded in a positive direction reflecting the time and hard work displayed by the coaches and wrestlers. For the past three years, Coach Brenneman has led the Husky Grapplers to a record season of 7-4-1. The wrestling members competed in individual matches in which they had to meet a required weight standard to achieve a place on the mat. Sometimes the matmen were a few pounds over their orginal weight class, so Coach Brenneman put them on an intense training program. This enabled the wrestlers to lose the required weight but still remain in top physical condition.

This year the team went on to the University Tournament in Morgantown, West Virginia, and completed a successful match placing 1 out of 8 teams participating. The teams also participated in the Pepsi Tournament at Fairmont, West Virginia placing 8 out of 17 teams. Qualifying for the Maryland State Championship were Jeff Rounds, Blair Bittinger, and Gerry Durst. Coach Brenneman, Stough, and Schmuch are very serious and dedicated to the sport of wrestling which adds a big demension to the wrestling program. ''The Huskies wrestlers are a 'super team,' '' Coach Brenneman stated, ''but still improving.'' Some of the Husky matmen did not compete in many of the matches becaue the older, more experienced wrestlers dominated the weight class. However, these younger wrestlers hope to better themselves with experience and hard work. Both JV and Varsity wrestlers practiced to perfect their maneuvers for victory.

The hardest part of the game is watching from the bench. Coach Brenneman and Husky wrestlers oversee a mistaken penalty called against them.

Wrestlers receive recognition.

Girls Varsity basketball players receive awards.

Aaron Zumpano, the outstanding male senior athlete, athlete, holds his trophies.

Perspiration, hardwork, showers, determination, winning, stinky-socks, losing, grades, Gatorade, and uniforms were all a major part of the athletes year at Northern High. These athletes were all recognized at the 1988 Athletic Banquet on June 4. The program began by a welcome given by Emerson McClintock. All enjoyed dinner after Stephen Yelovich completed the invocation. John Braskey, the master of ceremonies, spoke after everyone was done eating. The presentation of the awards proceeded.

The cheerleading award presentation consisted of recognizing the senior cheerleaders, Judy Sisler, Jenni Golden, and Sheli Bittinger.

The following individuals received the J.V. volleyball awards: Kim Beal (best offensive), Marcia Sisler (best defensive), and Gretta Bittinger (most improved). The Varsity volleyball awards highlighted Laura Sines (best offensive and most valuable player), Julie Yommer (best defensive), Pam Brenneman (most improved), and Kim Hinebaugh (sportsmanship).

J.V. football awards were presented next. Brian Friend received the most improved award and Blair Bittinger received the most valuable player award. Varsity football players, Kevin Wassell (most improved), and Rodney Lipscomb (most valuable player) were recognized.

Senior wrestlers, Steve Morton, Jeff Rounds, and John Vought were given senior trophies. The state tournament participants were Jeff Rounds, Jerry Durst, and Blair Bittinger. Jerry Durst, with a 24-7 record, received the Doug Carey Award. Receiving the Lee Sutherland Award were Jeff Rounds (19-10), and Steve Morton (19-11).

Next Merv Yoder recognized the boys J.V. basketball players. Highighted were Joey Spiker (most improved), Bobby Leight (unsung hero), Kirby King and Jimmy Stevens (both most outstanding players). The most improved boys Varsity basketball player was John Sherbin. The unsung heros were Greg Iden and Glen Seaman. Aaron Zumpano was the most outstanding player.

JoAnn and Tom Vent presented the tennis awards to Petrina Jones and Jimmy Stevens, who were the most improved players.

Baseball award recipients were Aaron Zumpano (most valuable player), Phil Beachy (most improved pitcher), Dave Yoder (most improved player, and Danny Sines (most valuable player).

Softball awards, handed out by Bob Yunker, were given to Suzie Bowser (most stolen bases), Tina Lashbaugh (best offensive), Julie Yommer (best defensive), Diane Fike (most improved), Regina VanSickle (most valuable player).

J.V. girls basketball award recepients were Laurie Stanton as best offensive and Melissa Thomas as best defensive. Vicki Yoder received the coaches trophy for Varsity basketball. Awarded to Tina Lashbaugh was the best defensive award. Melissa Beeman had the highest foul shooting percentage. The most outstanding player was Kristin Edwards and the senior award was given to Trina Stanton.

The special presentations followed. Todd Wagner was declared the three sport letterman. The male outstanding senior athlete was Aaron Zumpano. In conclusion Laura Sines and Melissa Beeman received the outstanding female senior athlete award.

At various times during a game players get hurt by other players, but who would think that cheerleaders would become part of their roughness? Just watch during any game and you would be guaranteed that at least one football, basketball, or player will be thrown in to the cheerleaders sideline area. The referees did not help much either. While out on the basketball court during a time out, the squad did cheers usually ending in mounts. The referees often stood right in front of the pyramid, and this allowed no place to dismount.

The Varsity cheerleaders were behind many activities at Northern. They made noise makers to sell at basketball games, decorated locker rooms before major games, organized spirit week, and sponsored the Homecoming Dance, ''Wipe-out.'' The busy cheerleading schedule did not end when school was out. The cheerleaders usually go away for camp during the summer. After the camp had been cancelled and rescheduled twice, the squad thought about just giving up. They had prepared and worked hard for camp, so they went. When they arrived at the small college campus, they were not sure what to expect. The dorms were a story in themselves. Most of the empty hallways were black and cold, filled with mysterious and satanic messages. Many of the cheerleaders got homesick. When a call home was necessary, you could be sure that Kathleen Peterson would be using the telephone.

Cheerleading requires much time, hard work, and dedication. The cheerleaders always manage some fun and good times.

Spirit and Pride from inside! The 1987-88 Junior Varsity Cheerleading squad worked well together and became a very close ''family''. They had a great attitude, and they all worked toward the same goal of being one unit. As Robin Bender stated, ''We all loved to cheer and support our school. Everything revolved around cheerleading.''

At the Northrn vs. Southern game, the J.V. had the opportunity to cheer with the Varsity. That was a night for the J.V. squad to remember, because they seldom get that chance.

It was a difficult year, because the advisor, Debbie Brenneman, was absent from most of the games, due to an illness in the family.

The squad had to use their own brainpower; they became responsible for their actions and decisions. In a sense they became their own advisors.

The 1988 season was yet another step forward for the baseball program at Northern. The team finished the year with a deceiving 9-7 record. Ten of the 16 games were played against opponents with .500 or better records including Southern, Beall, and Mt. Savage who were ranked in the "Times News area top 10." Northern was ranked in the final pool for the first time at number nine.

"This has been my most aggressive, optomistic team to date," stated Coach John Helmick. "These boys never quit. Their positive attitudes and overall work ethic was evidence of their personal performances if not their record."

This squad was led by the seniors (Rodney Lipscomb, Phil Beachy, Sean Jones, Roger Bittinger, and Aaron Zumpano) who took turns "picking the team up" offensively through the season. Juniors, Dan Sines and Todd Wagner handled most of the pitching with positive results. "With Dan, Todd, Tony Bittinger, John Sherbin, Dave Yoder, and our other underclassmen returning, we have a positive nucleus for '89," stated Coach Helmick. Coach Settle made a major contribution this year while joining the team as an assistant coach.

This year's team award winners were:
Aaron Zumpano - Most Valuable player
Dan Sines - Most Valuable pitcher
Dave Yoder - Most Improved Player
Phil Beachy - Most Improved Pitcher

If it isn't hot and humid, it's raining and cold. Just when you attempt to catch a flyball, the sun creeps into your eyes and hides the ball from you, or the wind causes you to misjudge and you are embarrasingly abused by the hard round object making an impact on your head. What to do? Take the jokes in stride and improve your season with each challenging game. Unfortunatly, that's exactly what this year's softball team encountered, the rainy weather just didn't want to cooperate. However, this team showed encouraging improvement and a worthwhile season despite the setbacks. Take a look:

Lead by nine seniors, the Lady Husky Softball team enjoyed one of it's most productive and successful seasons in recent years; they completed the season with 8 wins, while only suffering 2 losses. This record was good for a third place seating in Regional tournament play. Even more rewarding was the fact that they defeated archrival Southern three times during the season—a feat that not many Northern athletic teams have accomplished.

Love Isn't

Front row: Greg Holtschneider, Mike Bishoff, Meagan Ramsey, Greg Iden, Kendra Frazee, Bill Bishoff, Debbie Cook, Phil Rodeheaver, Petrina Jones, Kristin Edwards. Back row: Jim Stevens, Tanya Burdock, Kristin Crone, Kelli Iden, and manager, Sarena Rowe. Not pictured: Pam and Tam Brenneman, Kim Green.

Junior Varsity: Molly Ramsey, Maggie Rawe, Dave Brenneman, Tracy Murray, Heather Golden, Amanda Wakefield

To have a powerful serve, Greg Iden makes a high toss.

Love is not always a good thing, at least it is not in tennis. This year the Varsity tennis team had little success, however some individuals did have several victories. Kristin Edwards had a good singles record, while Greg Iden and Greg Holtschneider had a good doubles record. For the second year in a row, the girls' only victory was against the Allegany Campers.

The Junior Varsity did not have a chance to play due to their matches being cancelled. Because of the Junior Varsity cancellations as well as the Varsity, the season was cut short.

To build muscle and stamina, the tennis began weight training. The program started before the season and was a first for the team. This did not cancel practice held at Grantsville Park after school.

If the team keeps progressing, it will have a successful season in the next few years. With the experience gained this year the teams performance should increase a great deal.

Friend or Foe? Petrina Jones shows that after the competition, you can make friends with an opponent.

Special Honors Of N.H.S.

Carol Resh's hand shakes with nervousness as she places her signature in the National Honor Society register.

Jennifer Birkby and her dad enjoy the punch and cookies that followed the induction ceremony.

Proud of their accomplishments, Debbie Baker and Darren Wilburn are congratulated as new inductees of the N.H.S.

How would you feel if quite a number of people watched you as you walk up to a table, lean over, and sign your name in a book? That would explain all the shakey hands during the induction ceremony to the National Honor Society May 5, 1988. George Edwards, a special quest speaker, was present to speak to all new inductees and senior members.

The senior members helped the students of our school during the past year by tutoring. Members tutored in the mornings and after school to any student in danger of failing a class. Senior members also wore gold tassles instead of the blue tassels at graduation.

The qualifications of N.H.S. are very tough. Students must maintain an accumulative grade point average of 85% or better, be choosen by a faculty member, and complete an information sheet on themselves. The National Honor Society tries to create an enthusiasm for scholarships, stimulate a desire to render service, promote worthy leadership, and encourage the development of character in students.

Officers—Laura Sines-Secretary, Brenda Miller-Vice President, Megan Ramsey-President, Debbie Cook-Treasurer.

A Style Of Organizations

Student Leadership Organizes Activities

This year student council officers were busier than ever with a variety of old and new projects. High hopes of raising school spirit through new and unique activities, encouraging student/teacher relations, and continuing good communications with Southern High School were all on the agenda.

Student council pushed most of their energy into improving our school and community. Some of the activities planned for the '87-'88 school year were the bonfire, homecoming parade, dances, computer fun, and the bloodmobile. They are also purchased a new Husky mascot costume in hopes of raising school spirit.

As always, special commitees were assigned certain tasks. Along with the School Improvement, Ways and Means, Public Relations, and Student Activities, a special committee was set up this year. Representatives of our school kept in touch with Randy Fink who was not able to join us in a normal school day. As Randy spent a couple months in the hospital, the student council organized a visit to Randy about every month. Not only did they bring gifts such as birthday cards, Boston Creme Pies, stockings and models, this committee was also there to keep Randy informed of what happened at NHS.

Student council was there to try and repair our problems and extend our privileges.

Laura Sines, Kim Hinebaugh, and Marla Handwerk lend a helping "arm" in the bloodmobile.

The Kings And Queens Of Sports

The purpose of the Letterman Club is to bring together the lettering athletes to work on improving and promoting N.H.S. sports by fundraising for sport equipment and lettermen jackets. The most profitable fundraisers are the annual snowball dance and candy sales.

On May 11, 1988 the lettermen spent a very humorous and fun day rafting and canoeing. Many students were forced to swim, like Aaron Zumpano who tipped his raft over in the most calm part of the river and again on the rapids where he gave-up and swam the rest of the rapid.

While listening to the agenda for the Lettermans club meeting, Brent Yoder and Steve Brenneman take a quick look at the camera.

After the meeting Kevin Selby gives his opinion to Roger Bittinger about the meeting.

Front row: Ed Lytle, Aaron Zumpano, Jeff Rounds, Rodney Lipscomb, Steve Morton, Mr. Brenneman. Second row: Blair Bittinger, Billy Duckworth, John Friend, Danny Sines, Jason Rush, Ed Tabor, Kevin Selby, Nate Emory, Brent Yoder.

Jeff Rounds, Steve Morton, Aaron Zumpano, Rodney Lipscomb are waiting patiently to start the Lettermans meeting.

Third row: Jenny Bowser, Kim Beal, Gretta Bittinger, Pam Miller, Angie Friend, Regina Van Sickle, Fourth row; Marcia Sisler, Kim Hinebaugh, Olila McElory, Tracy Glotfelty.

When Lettermans and Girls Varsity meet together Steve Morton and Debbie Rounds have time to socialize.

Officers: Becky Meyers, Vice President; Debbie Rounds, Secretary; President; Debbie Rounds, Secretary; Vicki Yoder, Secretary; Vicki Yoder, Treasurer; Laura Sines, President.

Gretta Bittinger and Tracy Glotfelty are wearing their diapers to be initiated into Girls Varsity.

Supporting girl atheletes and encouraging them to participate in sports is what the Girls Varsity club is all about.

At the beginning of each club meeting, a formal business meeting is held to discuss old and new business, progress of fundraiseres and activities. Among the fundraisers and activites held were a candy stick sale, a bowl-a-thon, and selling candy after school. All in all it was a profitable year.

The officers and advisers who made this club enjoyable were: President, Laura Sines; Secretary, Debbie Rounds; Vice President, Becky Meyers; and Treasurer, Vicki Yoder. Advisers were Mr. and Mrs. Yunker.

Basketball, softball, volleyball tennis or cheerleading—whatever sport one is interested in, Girls Varsity club is the place to be for sports oriented girls.

Shouldn't all these pepole be hitting the slopes?

Recovering from the eighteenth fall, continually brushing wet-packed snow from your pants, snowplowing without getting your tips crossed, finding the best jumps, racing other skiers down North Face, paralleling on a nice packed surface, searching for a slope with moguls—What do all these things have in common? Ski club's field trip to Seven Springs.

On Wednesday, February 18, the majority of the ski club traveled to Seven Springs for an adventurous ski trip. As one bus load of skiers was ushered quickly to the slopes, the second bus received maintenance before leaving the parking lot, and then took a wrong turn. Skiers got anxious when it took a little longer to get to Champion, PA, home of Seven Springs Resort.

February 18 was the perfect day. Skiing conditions were at their best and everybody was anxious to spend as much time on the slopes as possible. For some members, this was a new, exciting experience. As Khiem Horchler commented, "For my first time, it was pretty fun." For other members, looking for the difficult slopes, moguls, and jumps was more tempting.

When 7 p.m. arrived, skiers had to board the bus back to NHS. Weary students returned their skis to the rental shop or loaded their skis on the bus for the trip back to Northern.

Another form of outdoor activity for our school is cross country skiing and hiking. The club, advised by Mrs. Welborn, takes well advantage of all seasons. In the fall and spring, they hike in surrounding areas; and in the winter, cross country skiing in the same area. They also planned a trip to New Germany State Park to ski the many trails there.

Steve McClintock and David Miller invent a believable story to cushion the shock of Steve's injury to his Mom.

The Shooting Stars

After catching a pass, David Yoder sets up for a jump-shot.

Once a month during club period, thirty students fill the gym trying to perfect their foul shots, dribbling, making lay-ups, or shooting the jump-shot. Some students sit along the sidelines talking, laughing, doing homework, or watch the basketball club take on the Letterman Club in a competitive, but fun game of basketball. On Their Way To Broadway Pepping Up The School

Doe, Ray, Me . . . get within hearing distance and that's what you will hear from the chorus. They practice their scales and prepare songs for the next performance. Representing the school musically, learning techniques behind preformances, creating new and unique ways to entertain fellow students, and reaching out for a better music knowledge are the key factors to their success.

Time is spent working hard to perfect the winter preformance during the Christmas season, and they strive to make an immaculent show for the spring finnale. Their presentations portray the best in each student.

Another extension of the music department is pep band. The pep band, a small portion of the marching band, tries to preform at home winter games and at all pep rallys. Clubs periods are the only practice time they have, so it is used wisely. Time is spent learning popular, upbeat tunes that keep everyone psyched up-ready to go!

Year Of Achievement Promotes School Spirit

Band 1, 2, 3, 4 . . . These familiar words are chanted out by drum major Debbie Cook at every practice, preformance, and competition. Beginning and ending a unique year with those words will remain in all who participated in the Northern Garrett Marching Band. When they march on the field, you can see that husky pride is on their side.

Our band has participated in numerous competitions placing well many times, including best silks, best rifles, best drum major, and taken many first and second places all around.

Leading the band was drum major Debbie Cook, silk captain- Dianna Vitez, and rifle captain- Sandy Lewis. Under the direction of Mr. Boord, determination, and strenuous practice, the ability to perform show after show without disruption makes the show a definite, worthwhile one to see!

Hoping to be acknowledged, Paul Lichty and Paul Miller quickly raise their hands in discovery of the answer.

Oranges, Oranges, Oranges, there go those Future Farmers of America continuing another year of selling oranges! That's not all they did this year. They have been keeping busy selling other items such as hoagies and sponsoring a sweetheart dance.

But selling isn't all they do. Keeping up-to-date on what's new is their main goal. By holding various projects on things such as livestock and crops, FFA members are more aware on how to keep better care of their possesions.

Kevin Wassel presides over the meeting as president of FFA in his last year of a four year membership.

Still pondering over his thoughts, Ron Rounds raises his hand in hopes of being correct in the discussion.

Tony Bittinger and Randy Buckel remain patriotic to the flag and listen to the speaker, Kevin Wassel.

President Kim Frantz and Vice President Barb Umbel are all smiles as they read the next clue in Win, Lose or Draw.

Future Homemakers of America, a popular organization for our school, not only welcomed new members to its ranks this year but a new advisor, Mrs. Law.

FHA helps the youth assume their roles in society through home ecomonics education area of personal growth, family life, vocational preparation, and community involvment. This is done through a series of work projects and guest speakers. Also, certain students were chosen to attend the FHA fall Leadership Conference held in October. Students attending this conference were Kim Frantz, Joy Holiday, Diane Bender, and Tanya Burdock. Members will also attend the FHA state meeting in April. The final trip of the the year will be to Hershey Park. Money was raised through a series of fundraisers including selling Christmas items, a January dance, and Easter candy sales.

Students with a interest in the Bible can share this with other kids who feel the same way during God Squad. Spending time playing Bible Trivial Pursuit and individual Bible study are enjoyed by all members. God Squad was also able to bring a Christian Rock Group, Lifeline, to our school to visit and explain their beliefs.

Another club that concerns caring students is SADD, Students Against Driving Drunk. The object of SADD is to make people understand and adhere to a policy of not drinking and driving. By making fellow classmates understand the deadly combination of drinking and driving, they may possibly prevent another fatality from occuring. S.A.D.D. has done numerous events to bring this to students' attention: through a Contract for Life and distribution of S.A.D.D. pens, and selling of window signs, they feel they are helping in some small way.

Relaxing And Learning Equals Extra Fun

Read . . . out of freewill, some students enjoy it, and also like to do it in their club time. In Literary Disscussion is for students who enjoy reading and discussing current books. The Literary Discussion club focused much attention this year on author Jack Kerouack. Videos and extra discussions were part of the study of Kerouack.

The group was also very helpful in preparing the literary issue of the Viking. They read over the entries and made decisions on what was to go in and left out.

Jobs are something we all need. Some students gave themselves a boost by joining Jobs club. Jobs club, advised by Mrs. Douds, helped students who are interested in pursuing work after graduation instead of college. The students were informed of job opportunities and enjoyed guest speakers.

A new addition to the agenda this year was Employee of the Month. Students from this club contacted employers and asked about job performance. The final decision was made by a group vote.

Now to get the engine back together . . . no problem, just give it to a N.H.S. student and they'll have it back together in a flash (or at least try). Before this, Mr. Hetrick, the club advisor, tries to get students better aquainted and tries to supply them with an understanding of automobiles and the automechanics field. This was done through films, guest speakers, and various shop projects.

Assisting Mr. Hetrick are officers: Jesse Opel-President, Jerry Orner-Vice-President, and J.P. Frye- Secretary.

Another vocational organization is Electronics. Student's talents are directed toward repairing electronic equipment used in industry. Club periods are often spent operating electric cars. No prerequisites are required for this club, but if the student has been previously enrolled in electronics or residential wiring, they have first choice in the club. Mr. Trickett, the club advisor is always willing to accept new students.

Is life just a game, Huey Wright?

Amazing, another new club and they're mixing work with fun. Distributive Education Clubs of America, DECA, is trying something a little different by allowing students a little more fun and a lot more responsibility. Developing education in marketing allows appreciation of our free enterprise system to strengthen. Students joining this organization have to take on the responsibilities that will be entrusted to them later on in life. Responsibilities represented in the form of fundraisers showing retailing skills.

Club time is often spent discussing possibilities for various community projects and preparing for state competition in marketing career activities. In planning for this, a trip was taken to Century Three Mall to study shop design and interview store owners.

Instead of working, some students would rather relax; joining Board Games is one way. Board Games is a up-and-coming club for our school, brought on possibly by the fun atmosphere of simple games such as Life, Payday, or Trivial Pursuit. There are no prequisites to become a member just a serious intent to relax and have a good time!

Weighttraining is provided so students interested in personal growth and devolopment can train anytime including Sundays.

Weightlifting, advised by Coach Vent, had no immediate plans for fundraisers. Coach Vent is assisted by President Darren McKenzie and Vice President Todd Wagner.

Another new organization to NHS is Watersports club, advised by Mr. Montgomery. Watersports is based on trying to improve the agility in water and learning different aspects of it. Time is often spent watching films, discussing safety rules and exploring various equipment.

Assisting Mr. Montgomery is President Greg Iden, Vice President Eric Martin. These officers planned a trip to Deep Creek Lake in the Spring, weather permitting, although weather isn't often permitting in Garrett County.

The "Wildlife" In Action

Two more new clubs to add to this year's selection were white water rafting and wildlife biology.

Many students came out to investigate the white water rafting scene and discovered a whole new world, which included various rafting trips to nearby rivers such as, the Youghiogheny River. The other new club, wildlife biology, is advised by Mr. Farrar. Members of this club could look forward to doing numerous things including, bush-wacking cross-country, watching films, and checking out field guides when the weather was bad. The purpose of wildlife biology is to get to know better what is happening in the woods, swamps, and meadows so we can survive there as well as survive at home.

Assisting Mr. Farrar is President Jerry Schlossnagle, and Vice-President Clay Carleton, and Secretary/Treasurer Mike Bishoff.

Mike Sines, Billy Dixon, and Darrell Sisler seem to be paying close attention, don't they?

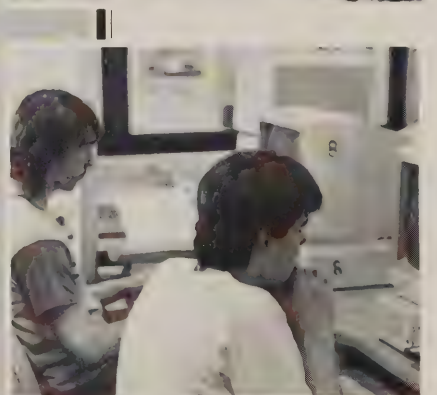
Computer club and Business club are two clubs preparing for their fast approaching future.

Computer club was a not-so-new club to NHS, but it has a new advisor. As advisor of the computer lab, as well as the club, Mrs. Lancaster has a full schedule. She fills students time with preparation, and execution of programs, playing games or drawing. Students in computer club were invited to learn more about computers at College Park, Maryland during a trip in late March.

The other club, business club is advised by Mrs. Nice and Mrs. Graham. Business club, surprisingly enough, is a club having no fundraisers, but instead is concerned with having fun and making the best of a learning experience. Capturing the students' interests in the business field with guests speakers tactics and topics of the business world add a little more interest to it!



David Brenneman and Randy Maust struggle to understand the data.

Jim Thomas seems pleased with the computer's response.

Teachers are to be commended for the help they give their students during school and after. Students, sometimes forget that teachers were our age at one time.

The pictures that are on these pages represent the changes through the years. Teachers have past lives just like us. Maybe the styles have changed, but the principle of enjoying life stays the same.

Mrs. Frazee's views about her attitude since high school are, "Each year I learn even more what the truly important things in life are—not money, prestige or power but instead, family, friends, and enjoying the little wonders of the world." Her philosophy about the world is, "It doesn't really get better or worse, it just becomes different." Mr. Kolbe's ideas about teenage life now compared to teenage life when he was in high school: "When someone is a teenager, everything is new and an adventure is around every corner. As one gets older, he or she may learn that nothing is ever new."

Miss William's attitude about herself now is: "In features and stature, I seem to look exactly like my mother—the penultimate achievement, I might add. I think my personality is pretty much the same." She also adds, "I think I use to admire 'fashionable' people. I now respect 'stylish' people, and I am not talking about their clothes." When asked about reliving his high school years again, Mr. Devore laughs; when he says, "I would not have had the same girlfriend for longer than a month and I would have studied harder."

Mrs. Yunker comments on how she has changed over the years: "Bearing Tim and Linda 'matured' my body; my loveable students have added grey highlights to my hair. I tend to be more outgoing today and more cyncial of mediocrity, I expect perfection." From Mrs. Davis's point of view of the world, she stated: "While I was growing up, I was surrounded with civil riots, Vietnam War protests, rebellion against the generation gap, the threat of nuclear bomb and the hippie, yippie and the Beatles. We owe a debt to those who sacrified so much to make the world the better place it is today. I do think; however, we can still strive to make it even better."

Dr. Snelson's view about life now: "The world is more of a powder keg than it was when I was teenager—before the flood," he added in a humorous note. Mr. Douds states, "My appearance is very similar, but I have a little less on top. I stay more to myself but other characteristics have grown. I continue to improve my positive attitude toward everything."

Mrs. Teats believes "many of us would like to have the opportunity to change part of our past but only if we could remember what we know now." So you see, teachers are just like us, but maybe a little older and wiser. Baby, they have come a long way.

"Sorry, But-You're Just Too Young!"

It's no secret that some insurance companies may not like to sell auto insurance to youthful drivers.

At Nationwide Insurance however, we care about youthful drivers. We know that they—like their parents—need solid protection.

That's why we're pleased to offer Nationwide Auto Insurance to good, reponsible drivers of all ages.

Call Nationwide today for a second opinion on your auto protection at no obligation or cost.

Fading Out

Chipping slag off of metal, Jeff Lowdermilk works precisely to complete his Industrial Arts project.

During Computer Science, Jimmy Thomas operates the IBM computer.

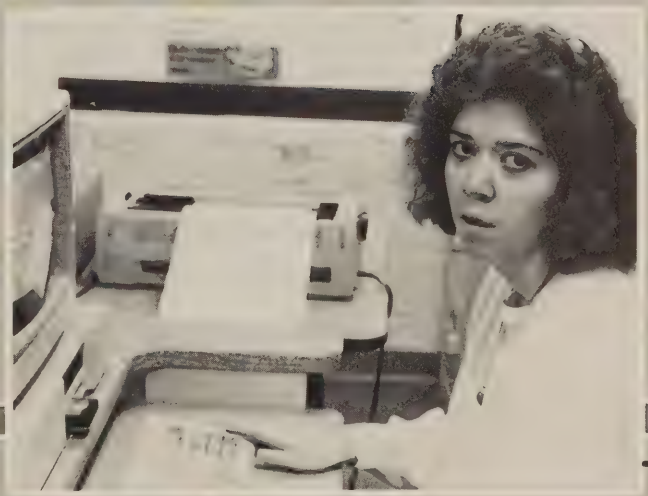
While Patty Broadwater and Chrity Platter read a note during Home Ec, Linda House fiddles with her pen.

During fourth period, Brett Cosner labors over a math program.

Marcia Sisler participates in the dress-up day during Homecoming week.

Pen in hand and wite-out nearby, Robert Yoder works steadily to complete his task in Vo-Ag.



With a look of confusion, Tammy Weimer tries to uncover the mystery of her computer problem.
Todd House is in full thought while Bob Getty records his notes in Vo-Ag.

The Closing Of Style

At the end of the 1987-88 school year in Northern High School, a distinct and individual style was left behind. Trends and styles were not followed closely. However, some fads do slip into the picture. Jean jackets, T-shirts, Swatches, rolled up pants, and acid washed jeans only begin the list of items that were popular during the school year.

Students try to maintain a learning ability and an upbeat view. This attitude is obvious, because as a rule, Northern scores high in academic testing. For example, the ninth grade students ranked high on all the Maryland Functional Tests.

Eratic weather swept through the winter season. The temperatures ranged from approximately, 40° below zero, with windchill factors, to around 65°. There was not a happy medium, therefore the ski season was not the best. The slopes were either covered with ice or filled with slush and bare spots., however, skiers made the best of it. At times five to six layers of clothing were necessary, but when temperatures rose, T-shirts and jams were needed for comfort.

Even though there where cold and icy conditions, the students were not able to enjoy any snow days. There were, however, several two hour delays. By the middle of March, it looked like spring was here, but on the night of March 13th, winter returned, and Garrett County received approximately five to six inches of snow. The snow was to no benifit because Winter Fest was over and skiing would have to wait for the next season. Even individuals who did not ski did not enjoy the snow because they were ready for spring.

By the end of March, the spring weather finally arrived and stayed. Seniors began to realize that their days in NHS were soon to end, and they would be facing a new world. Friendships would soon turn to memories and promises to keep in touch would have to be made. During the final countdown, seniors tried to make the best of their last high school days. Activities such as a senior party were planned.

As the year drew to an end the workload of the students and faculty increased. The week that Middle States visited Northern High School, teachers felt pressure and hoped the evaluation would be successful. Completing term papers and projects and preparing for final exams filled many hours of the students' time. Deadlines got closer and teachers rushed to finish everything they had planned to complete by the end of the 1987-88 school year. There were plenty of activities planned to relieve tension.

Mike Bisoff, Clay Carlton and Jerry Schlosslagle wander around aimlessly at the junkyard waiting for the tire to be changed so they can come home from the computer trip safe and sound.

The day seems to drag by for Kelli Stark as she lounges in the corner waiting for the bell to ring to go home.
